Mr. D. sows his lettuce about the middle of September, and places frames with window glass, useful. over the beds, sloping both the beds and the frames to the south. In the spring, early, he transplants. Lettuce here will sometimes live through he winter without any other covering than a little compost manure on the surface. We often find

BOILING MILK.

MR. EDITOR,-I have heard it said that the Mr. Noyes Darling, in a communication to the publisher of the Albany Cultivator, says he has made several attempts to grow early lettuce without a hot bed, but could not succeed by sowing in our hot bed, but could not succeed by sowing in this as warranted fact, for I have never tested the fall till he covered his bed with glass through the experiment; it is merely thrown out as a the winter. He thinks it is not cold weather that hint for a trial by those who may be troubled destroys the fall sowing, but the want of light in with their cows eating garlic or other unwhale some food; thus rendering the butter made of the cream they give, unsavory. THE DOG AND COW.

You can have no conception, Mr. Editor, of the degree of excitement this little village is in, by reason of one trivial circumstance, which that onion seed must be sown early or no harvest must be expected. We have no good reason to fire why these seeds may not be sown late in May, at our seasons are always long enough to ripen onions. But you will rarely find good bottoms unless the seed is sown as early as the fore part of this menth.

It seems unnecessary to plough deep fer onions, though their white roots are found to ran to a considerable distance from the plants. The bulbs are essally full before the driest weather comes, and THE DOG AND COW. this may be a reason why no great depth of soil is required. We have heard that some gardeners will not suffer their grounds to be ploughed at all for enions.

OFFICIAL.

By a law of the Commonwealth, provision is made at the American Asylum, at Hartford, at the public expense, for deaf and damb persons between the ages of eight and twenty-five years.

Pupils are received at the Asylum in the second week in May, on the recommendation of the Governor. Applications for the benefit of the prevision should be directed to the Secretary's office. The application should be signed by a parent or guardian, and must be "accompanied by a certificate of the selectmen of the town, where such parent or gaardian resides, that such parent or guardian, in addition to his or her necessary expenses, is not able to defray the expense of board and instruction of such deaf and dumb persons at the Asylum."

According to a statement in the Weston (Missouri) Journal, about 7000 bales of homp, the crop of last season, will be shipped from that place this spring. The same paper states that the aggregate amount, if the season had been favorable, would have reached 20,000 bales. It is thought that 20,000 bales will be raised in that neighborhood this year.

When people are called to a fire in the woods, they should not go with their hands in their pockets. They must have spades, and hoes, and if they can procure a plough it will aid them to make back fires where the brush wood is not thick.

SUGAR. The Vermont Mercury says, Vermont has doubtless made many more tons of maple sugar than will suffice for the wants of her population, and so long as good maple sugar can be obtained at prices varying from six to eight cents a pound, according to the quality, few will be found who will not prefer their own home manufactured article, to paying the prices now asked for southern sugars. It is proposed to Congress by a genteman of the name of Whittney, who, meeting with no particular order from that body, has undertaken himself, to make an examination of the desired toute. The National Intelligencer states that it is Mr. W's intention to pass over and partially examine seven or eight hundred miles of the 20th of May, for Green Bay, follow the Lake down to Milwaukie, thence west to the Missouri River, and return by St. Louis. Several young gentlemen of high respectability and education will accompany him, and he says it will please him to have the number increased. This is an important project, however extravagant and visionary it may seem. The National Intelligencer says of it: "Without pretending as yet to offer any decided opinion as to the feasibility of Mr. Whitney's bold idea, we confess that its mere vastness, though suggesting to manything but forbids, therefore, the prosecution of a careful examination of the possibilities of his plan. The Oregon question had attached much attention since it was mooted in Parliment by Sir Robert Peel. The language of President Polk had been unsparingly condemned, and the merican claims have been duly set forth and insisted upon. But this is not all—the dernier resort—war—has been pointed at unmistakeably in some prominent and respectable journals, as a thing that is to be, that must be, unless the Americans lower their pretensions. When the public mind begins to dwell upon the hoatile alternative for a length of time, war looses its horrors in the excitement which such a frame of mind produces, and thus is created a reatless, morbid desire for the "fray." in anticipation of the tortuous negociations of diplomacy.

should'nt wonder if I caught my death; yes; and that is created a restless, morbid desire for the "fray." in anticipation of the tortuous negociations of diplomacy.

The Parliamentary news since the last advices are not of great importance, and relates chiefly to a grant proposed by Sir Robert Peel for the improvement of the education provided for Roman Catholic students in the college of Maynooth. A large number of the supporters of the established church affect to consider this grant to be tantamount to the endowment of Popery, and evince a very strong opposition to the proposal, in which they are assisted by the Dissenters, who are against almost all advocates for the voluntary principle of religion, and against the endowment of any church whatever by the State, though receiving themselves the benefit from the Regium Donum. There can, however, be little doubt that the Premier will carry his measure, as he is upfield by a large body of the Protectant clergy and laity, who are of opinion that something is necessary to be done to show the Roman Catholicism with an improved secular education. This proposal of the Premier was looked upon as a master at the principles of the reformation is to term the professors of Roman Catholicism with an improved secular education. This proposal of the Premier was looked upon as a master at the principles of the reformation is for the pacification and elevation of the sister country.

A beneficial effect has already been produced in Ireland for the mere announcement of the interval of the premier was looked upon as a master at the principles of the reformation is for the pacification and elevation of the sister with an improved secular education. This proposal of the Premier was looked upon as a master than the professors of Roman Catholicism with an improved secular education. This proposal of the Premier was looked upon as a master than the professors of the reformation is the professor of the premier was looked upon as a master than the professor of the premier was looked up

A beneficial effect has already been produced in Ireland for the mere announcement of the ministerial proposition; the power of agitation is plainly on the wane; O'Connell has postponed his intended meeting at Clontarf—has evinced a desire to feature here have lent the umbrella!

"You have to go on Thursday about that summons; and, of course, you can't go. No indeed, you don't go, without the production." ed his intended meeting at Clontarf—has evinced a desire to fraternize with the Premier in his efforts for the amelioration of the country, and is all gratitude for favors to come, whilst the high Roman Catholic elergy are satisfied, and the English prelates of the Roman Catholic Church, to the number of ten or eleven, at presmether's without the umbrella. You may lose the debt for what I care—it won't be so much as spoiling your clothes—better lose it; people deserve to lose debts who lend umbrellas!

"And I should like to know how I'm to go to mather's without the umbrella."

Peel their united thanks for his conduct.

The proposed visit of the Queen to Ireland too, it was thought would have a favorable effect. It is generally supposed that Her Majesty and Prince Albert will arrive there about the middle of July, and that they will occupy apartments in Dublin Castle and the Vice Regal Lodge. The leading ministers will attend the Royal pair, and O'Connell has promised them a good reception.

The accounts from the United States respecting Texas, had created some hopes that the young Republic would reject the annexation project. "This intelligence," says the European Times, "has not proved uppalatable to the popular taste on this side of the water; it has excited some surprise, because it was unlooked for." The papers think that on commercial and political grounds, as well as a desire on the part of a large portion of the people of the United States to prevent human slavery from being spread over a larger surface, annexation was likely to be determinedly opposed by the defacto Government of the embryo State; added to the conviction that the stronger power will be deconviction that the stronger power will be deconvicted to the provided that the stronger power will be deconvicted to the provided that the stronger power will be deconvicted to the provided that the stronger power will be deconvicted to the provided that the stronger power will be deconvicted to the provided that the stronger pow
